DR. KANE'S ARCTIC LIFE BOAT .- Those who have read "Dr. Kane's Arctic Expedition" doubtless have a vivid recollection of the thrilling adventures de-scribed therein, and the interest with which they followed that intropid navigator on his perilous re-turn among the ice-floes in the now famous life-boat. That boat brought Dr. Kane and his crew safe after numerous hair-breadth escapes. It was afterwards presented to the city. It is a precious relic of the voyage of our distinguished townsman, and as such voyage of our distinguished townsman, and as such should be carefully guarded and protected. On our recent visit to Fairmount Park we noticed the boat, if we err not, placed in an enclosure, and, without the least care whatever, permitted to rot away piecemeal, exposed to all sorts of weather. This is disgraceful to our authorities, who should be reminded of their culpable negligence, and efforts at once made to preserve this valuable relic by means at easy command. It has been truly remarked that there is in this country no respect for either age or authority, and what in Europe would be regarded with affection and veneration is here looked upon as old foryish. We simply desire to call the attention of the public to the fact, and to ascertain if a remedy cannot be applied, so that this valuable relic of the Arctic expedition can be preserved for a while longer. dition can be preserved for a while longer.

THE BENEFICIAL SAVINGS FUND SOCIETY ROBBERY. Certain it is that the securities and bonds which were stolen from the Benedicial Saving Fund Society have been returned, but by what means we are unable to learn. The only particulars of the affair that can be discovered reveal the fact that with every stage of the processings the city authorities, both legal and executive, were acquainted. The announcement that the doors of the institution would be described by the day. be opened attracted a large assemblage of the depo-sitors of the Fund around the building at Twelfth and Chesnut streets, this morning. Servants and others who had entrusted their all to the safe of the society were there, each armed with a check. Many withdrew their amounts, while others, confident that the officers would take better care of their deposits nereafter, were content to leave without drawing

THE WORM NUISANCE.—The Committee on City Property of City Councils assembled in Independence Square this morning to witness an operation of killing the measuring worms. The inventor of the process cut a limb of a Linden tree which was covered with the vermin and planted it in the soil. He then took a watering-pot filled with a fluid, for which he claims fertilizing qualities as well as the power of destroying worms, which he poured over the branch. After several applications the worms dropped off to the earth. The committee were favorably impressed with the power of the stuff, but judging from the quantity which was used over the branch of the tree, they considered that the expense to the city would be immense,

From the Herald.

'The rate on call loans during the week was quite even at mix and seven per cent., according to the character of the collaterals and the standing of the borrower. On the last days there was more activity and few transactions took place at lower figures than the full legal rate. The bank statement accounts for this alteration in the market. Commercial paper is in fair request by the city and country banks, and long paper is equally a favorite with them for investment, which would indicate that higher rates on call or make their usual fail demand for funds to move the octain and corn. Indeed, the natural vear ago, amid the interest rate is to lower figures. A perintendency of the interest rate is to lower figures. A proposition of the control of the contr of the Open Beard. The only official communication ever sent to A. T. Stewart as Secretary of the Treasury was the celebrated resignation of Mr. Binckley, which was not accepted, and which led to the fracas between him and Mr. Harland and his foot-race after Mr. Rollins. Stewart never having taken charge of the Treasury officially, no one opened the communication, and it has been flying around from post to pillar, still unopened, ever since; hands Mr. Buckley's reag-nation was never accepted, and he thought him-self outraged purposely, when the whole un-pleasantness was occasioned by Congress not repealing the law which kept Mr. Stewart out of the Treasury. Judge Blatchford said he had received no instructions from the Executive Department, nor no information from Spanish officials in refer-ence to resisting the bonding of the vessel. He said he would neither consent to nor resist the motion, but, if granted, the bond must be a good one, as he had no doubt but the vessel was intended for some warlike service. # LEVERDY JOHNSON.

The Ex-Minister at Home-His Views on the Rejection of the Alabama Treaty-A Free The New York Times correspondent, while in Baltimore on Saturday last, improved the opportunity which was afforded of visiting ex-Minister Reverdy Johnson. He found the returned diplomat at his elegant country seat, just without the limits of the

THE ENGLISH PROPLE. After congralutions had been excanged, the conversation turned upon affairs in England.
"Yes," said he, "the English are a great people. They are very rich, very warm-hearted. My career there was a regular evation from first to last. They dine there about 8 o'clock in the evening, and those public entertainments are splendid affairs." An here the old gentleman's eye twinkled and his fac-was wreathed in smiles at the pleasurable recollec-was wreathed in sintes at the pleasurable reconce-tions of his innumerable banquets:

He continued:—"I found nothing but good-will there for the United States. They received me with open arms. I was tendered more invitations to dinners, public and private, than I could eat. I ad-dressed multitudes of people. I had to decline that Southampton banquet as I was leaving, because I was too unwell. I had an attack of indigestion, and I could not go." sumner's speece.

"How is Sumner regarded?" queried the correspondent.

"How is Sumner?" then said Mr. Johnson. Here was Mr. Johnson's sore point. He had not a friendly word for Summer, and regarded his speech on the Alabama question as the source of all his tribulation. "Mr. Summer is in Washington," I replied, "and feels extremely well satisfied with his speech."

"Well," replied Mr. Johnson, 'I do not know that any one clae is satisfied with it. I tell you that that appear of Summer has made England a unit against the United States. Our friends there have fallen of by troops. At first the people declared for war, but now I think they have got over that idea and are natisfied that our intentions are pacific. The speech having been approved by the Senate, the English people at first thought that it was a declaration of war, and were prepared to accept it in that spirit; but they have since changed their minds, and now they have justly arrived at the conclusion that Sumner is, after all, but one American citizen, and does not represent the views of the administration. Motiey has gone over there. I left before he arrived. I do not believe that he has got any instructions whatever. They objected to my making speeches that the United States desired to be on friendly terms with England. What has he done? The very first thing he does on landing is to say that his mission is pacific. I said that my mission was pacific. Sumner says that his speech was made in the interest of peace. Why, we are all for peace."

IT IS ABSURD. For a few minutes Mr. Johnson here relapsed into silence, and then broke out again: "Sumner's speech is absurd! Do you know what they say of it in England? Charendeon says that it is absurd and preposterous; that it is not the speech of either a lawyer or a statesman; that its propositions are wholly inadmissible. Why," said Mr. Johnson, "this same Mr. Sumner wrote to Mr. Bright on the 19th or 20th of last January that the protocol which I sent here would have been almost unanimously approved if it had been received three weeks sooner. The fact is, the incoming President did not want the question settled during the administration of Andrew Johnson, and the Republican party did not want it settled by me. They did not want the eclat of having the most difficult question, short of the question of actual separation, that has arisen between the two countries, settled by a Democratic Administration. That was the point of objection to my course and to my protocol. Mr. Sumner said to my colleague, Mr. Vickers, that a month earlier, It would have been as welcome as champagne. Bright denounces Sumner's speech in the strongest terms." For a few minutes Mr. Johnson here relapsed into

WHY IT WAS NOT PUBLISHED "Why don't the English papers publish Mr. Sum-ner's speech ?"
"Why, because it is too nonsensical. Clarendon

"Why, because it is too nonsensical. Clarendon says that the United States as a Government has no claims against England as a Government. The United States has private individual claims against England, and England has private individual claims against the United States. These the English people and Government are willing to submit to an arbitration. Clarendon says that England might as well say that she would reject the treaty because the holders of Irish Republican bonds might come in under its terms. would reject the treaty because the holders of Irish Republican bounds might come in under its terms. The Americans whom I have met abroad denounce Mr. Sumner as much as the English people do. It is a feelish speech. Take that point which he makes about a blockade. That decision in the prize cases in II Black is totally against him. The English papers have not published and will not publish his speech."

Mr. Johnson was very indignant on this subject Mr. Johnson was very indignant on this subject. He could not tolerate the idea of attaching any importance or significance whatever to the ideas of the Massachusetts Senator. He started up from his seat, and walking up and down the room, nervously and rapidly said :

and rapidly said:

"The English Government will never accede to the Sumner demands. Clarendon won't yield one inch from his position. They have taken it and cannot be shaken in their resolve. They are a very proud people, a powerful people, and cannot be frightened."

"What do you think of a war between England and the United States, Mr. Johnson? What would be the result of it?"

"The result would be unfavorable to us. In the first place, our debts are equal. But there will not be and cannot be a war so long as there is any common sense left to the two peoples. But, to talk about it for argument's sake:—England was never better prepared for a war than she is now, and the United States is less able to enter on a contest of the kind than she was during the Bebellion. Do you remember Admiral Porter's letter on the subject? He is of my opinion, or rather, I am of his, that we cannot fight England. Yes, they would give us Canada, provided the Canadian people were willing to be exchanged; but I do not think they are, and sooner than part with that province, on forcible terms, England would lose her last man on forcible terms. England would lose her last man and her last shilling."

"But suppose it is insisted upon?" "President

Grant will not insist upon it, I am confident. If he should do it, war will be the result. I do not knew anything of Mr. Motley's instructions. Clarendon says he does not know what they are, and we have only to wait the course of events." WEDDING INVITATIONS, ENGRAVED IN the newest and best manner.
